Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 22 Jul 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Any afternoon showers dying out to leave clear spells. Warm.

This Evening and Tonight:
Isolated afternoon thunderstorms quickly dying out to leave clear spells. Some patchy fog forming by dawn while low cloud returns to some eastern counties of England and Scotland. Another warm or very warm night, especially in the south and west.

Friday:
Low cloud mostly clearing to leave another very warm or hot day with sunny spells. Isolated thundery showers may develop in the west before rain arrives into the southwest later.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Heavy showers and thunderstorms developing across southern parts over the weekend, then edging further north by Monday. Parts of Scotland and Northern Ireland likely staying fine and very warm throughout.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.